

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Monday, April 22, 1912.

VARIOUS MATTERS

Sunny days like Saturday make business good for the photographers and florists.

Soldiers and sailors from New London were conspicuous among visitors to Norwich Saturday and Sunday.

Neosha club whist tonight at Foresters' hall—adv.

Sunday afternoon, Archdeacon J. E. Brown was in Jewett City to conduct an episcopal service for churchmen of that borough.

In the list of last week's contributors to Brown university endowment fund, Rev. W. Douglas Swaffield of Danbury is credited with $10.

The annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Connecticut will be held at Christ church, Hartford, beginning Tuesday, June 11.

The memorial fountain on the Little Main, given the town by Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., has had its wooden lid removed for the season.

See that your dog is licensed today; $1.00 extra after May first—adv.

Decorative mountain on the Thames, a famous place for archery, in ordinary years, has little to show this season but brown leaves, the plants having been winter killed.

Marion Wilson, whose entertainment pleased an audience at Trinity M. E. church Friday night, appeared in the Congregational church at Saybrook Point Saturday evening.

The $25 given to the Guild fund by Deborah A. Putnam, church member, D. A. R., of Mainfield, was received too late to go on the state report's annual report for the past year.

One of the experts announced to contribute to the New York Sunday Times' annual real estate review is Charles E. Dyer, of the Connecticut State Fire Insurance Company.

The tax collector will be at the store of John C. Foster, East Street, today, from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.—adv.

Sunday afternoon's bright weather did not tempt everybody to wander afield, a good number finding quiet recreation in the Otis library reading room, where Miss Ward was in charge.

Chairman Charles W. Comstock and Secretary Edwin S. Thomas of the Democratic state committee have endeavored to make the Stratfield hotel at Bridgeport for the coming state convention.

The funeral of Thomas Wood of Waterford, who died suddenly in New York Thursday, was held at his home on Durfee hill, Waterford, Sunday, at 2 p. m. Burial was in West Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Extend every effort to obtain all available men for every department of the service, is the substance of the instructions received from the war department by the United States army recruiting officers in Connecticut.

Whist and social by Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., that was to have been held Monday, April 22, is postponed to Thursday, April 25—adv.

Norwich relatives of William C. Collins will go to Hartford today, to attend his funeral at his home, Rev. Irving B. Berg, pastor of the South Congregational church, will officiate. Burial will be in Cedar Hill cemetery.

At a special meeting of the New Haven county bar Friday, resolutions were passed upon the death of John Currier Gallagher, late clerk of the court, who died at his home in Norwich last week.

The last meeting of the women's auxiliary of Christ Episcopal church was held with Mrs. Channing M. Huntington at her home on Washington street, Friday afternoon. The work began earlier in the season was completed, after which tea was served.

The officers of Fort H. G. Wright and Fort Terry united Saturday evening in giving a complimentary farewell banquet to Col. William C. Rafferty, who will leave about May 1 to take up his new duties at New Terry. The banquet was given at Fort Terry.

A hearing by the state industrial insurance commission has been adjourned to be held in the superior court room at Waterbury today (Monday). The members of this commission are Thomas H. Rogers and John S. Bates of New Haven and John S. Bates of Norwich.

Miss Jean Hamilton, who spoke to the Halle club members and their friends Thursday and Friday, went from Norwich to Naugatuck, where she delivered the men and women interested in the holding of the young girls on Park place on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

An order from the adjutant general's office says that officers in charge of rifle ranges and company commanders must before permitting a shot to be fired personally inspect same, to see that the ranges, including bullet holes, are absolutely safe for the marksmen, and other persons working in the vicinity.

The Stors College Lookout states that an experienced shepherd has been secured in the office of Niagara stock farm, Lewiston, N. Y., who will take care of the sheep and beef cattle and some of the other livestock. He has had twenty years experience in this country and was formerly a sheep man in England.

One of the big oyster companies has leased the entire acreage of Great Salt pond, Block Island, and will try to do with the clam what was long ago done with the oyster. The pond is being used as a breeding stock for clams from Maine and Nova Scotia and hard clams from New Bedford and Prince Edward Island.

Referring to the will of the late Prof. William Calhoun Robinson, a native of Norwich, the current issue of the Catholic Transcript comments: "It is refreshing to find in our own times a man who could embody in his person the intellectual and the spiritual, the while devoting himself intensely to the works of an exacting vocation."

I. Eisenstein & Co. of Turnerville, who some time ago bought the mill, tenements and land in that village, have started up the manufacture of umbrella handles and canes in the stone mill. They have installed circular and band saws, shapers, and other woodworking machinery, all of which is operated by electric power. About twenty hands are employed.

By order of Governor Baldwin, on Friday, April 26, the day of Gen. Frederick D. Porter, the national flag will be displayed over the state arsenal and all armories at halfmast from sunrise to sunset.

Officers of the Connecticut National guard will wear the usual badge of mourning for a period of thirty days.

The tragic death of Major Archibald W. Butt is regretted by none more sincerely than by Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Tracy Williams of Rockville, family, whose son was when they gave a brilliant reception in honor of President William H. Taft, during the 25th anniversary celebration of Norwich. The soldierly qualities of the president's gallant aide were as noticeable then as they were during his last heroic moments on the Titanic.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. John Hillhouse of Wilimantic were visitors in town Sunday.

Mrs. C. L. Harwood of Washington street has returned after spending the winter with relatives in New York and Washington.

Mrs. L. B. Young arrived from New Jersey Saturday evening to join Mr. Young, who is in town working on a special contract.

Miss Mary Rasmussen has returned to New London from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Hansen of Norwich.

Miss Harriet Brown, who has spent some time with her mother, Mrs. J. Perkins of Gales Ferry, has returned to her duties in the Hartford schools.

Edward Coulter, Jr. of Gales Ferry and Samuel Halliday of Essex will attend the state encampment, Sons of Veterans, held at Norwich, Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gorman of Stratford are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Allison Smith of East Street. Mr. Gorman spoke in All Souls' church, New London, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Mary E. Newbury, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Allen of Church Street, left Saturday evening for the home of her son, Christopher G. Newbury, of Goshen, Waterford, making the trip in Mr. Newbury's automobile.

DEPT. COMMANDER, G. A. R. William H. Dougal of New Preston Chosen at State Encampment.

William H. Dougal of New Preston was chosen department commander by a large majority over E. Bishop of Putnam and William Tyoe of Waterbury, at the closing session of the G. A. R. encampment at Bridgeport Saturday.

Russell Glenn of Bridgeport was elected senior vice commander and Edgar East of Rockville, junior vice commander.

Commander Douglas served in the Sixth Connecticut volunteers through many campaigns and was an arm at the charge upon Fort Wagner.

The delegates voted for the recommendation of Retiring Commander Cubitt raising the per capita tax from ten cents to thirty, and to plant an oak upon the state capitol grounds in Hartford on April 5, 1912, to be known as the Grand Army oak. That date will be the anniversary of General Lee's surrender.

The council of administration selected are: F. E. Besch of Norwich, Major Thomas Boudreau of New London, W. Sharp of New Haven, Dwight C. Kilbourn of Litchfield and R. J. Cutbill of South Norwalk.

The offices of assistant adjutant general and assistant quartermaster general will be consolidated in the naming of a staff in line with Commander Cubitt's recommendations.

Who attended by over five hundred comrades. At noon the ladies of the auxiliary bodies served dinner to all.

Dr. M. W. Robinson of Noroton was in charge of the medical department, while Dr. H. H. Hilton of Hartford as department chaplain, completing the list of elective officers.

MAN STRUCK BY CAR.

Left Foot Crushed Beneath the Wheels As the car leaving the square at 2.45 o'clock Sunday afternoon rounded the curve at the lower end of Norwich avenue, a man stepped from between two poles beside the track and was struck by the front of the car. The impact knocked him down and his left foot slipped under the wheel, which crushed the lower part of the foot. He was taken by two of his friends to the hospital, where he was otherwise uninjured. The man apparently neither saw nor heard the approaching car, although he was standing near the motor bus on the wharf just before the man was struck.

OBITUARY.

Theodore W. Yerrington, one of the most widely known men in Norwich, died Sunday evening about 8 o'clock at his home in Canterbury, the end coming as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage, although for several years he had been in poor health with intestinal trouble. For years Mr. Yerrington had been secretary of the New London County Agricultural Society, and he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

As secretary of the agricultural society, he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

As secretary of the agricultural society, he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

As secretary of the agricultural society, he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

As secretary of the agricultural society, he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

As secretary of the agricultural society, he had been in the management of the business since the death of his father, and the sudden news of his death will come as a shock to the wide circle of friends he had made. He attended the meeting of the agricultural society officers here last Friday.

Mr. Yerrington was native of Norwich, the son of Ezra Yerrington and Mary Huntington, and would have been 71 years old on the 17th of August next. His whole life except for the last six years, when he had conducted his farm at Canterbury, was lived in Norwich, where he conducted Yerrington's Temple of Music, a business which had been started in 1862, and to which he succeeded.

AUTO OFF BANK AT TRADING COVE

Abraham Bronstein of New London With Party of Five

Hardly Scratched When Car Landed in the Field 20 Feet Below—Machine a Wreck.

Abraham Bronstein of New London with a party of five in a touring car which he was driving had a lucky escape from serious injuries Sunday about noon, when Mr. Bronstein lost control of the steering gear on Trading Cove Hill, and the car dashed through the iron fence at this point, dove off a three foot embankment, and landed with its nose in a gutter, left about 20 feet below the level of the road, where it came to rest.

Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

Several sections of the iron fence along the highway were torn loose when the car went through, and the iron posts ripped out of the stone wall.

The summer of 1910 Mr. Bronstein had another lucky escape in an automobile accident, when his car stuck on the John street railroad crossing and he was forced to jump out just before a train hit the machine and demolished it.

Mr. Bronstein with his party was coming down the hill towards the Trading Cove store when the accident happened. Had the car turned into a ditch, it would have plunged off the embankment for a distance of 20 feet, but just where it tore through the iron fence it landed on a steep grassy slope, rushed along for a dozen feet and then twisted sideways into a deep narrow gully cut in the hill, where the front wheels held fast and the machine came to a sudden stop that threw everybody out on the grass.

The machine was a wreck. It was stated by one New London automobile man who saw it after the accident, a piece of the iron fence was jammed through the middle of the radiator, the glass windshield was broken and twisted, the amps, fenders and running board bent, and the front wheels damaged. The car, one, it is stated, that Mr. Bronstein bought at auction for $160, and had put into good running order.

LENT REVIEWED.

Was a Period of Extraordinary Spiritual Success in St. Patrick's Church, Says Rev. Hugh Treanor—Titanic Disaster Suggests Uncertainty of Life—Coming Parish Mission.

Speaking at the high mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, Rev. Hugh Treanor, the rector, commended his parishioners for zeal in making the Lenten period just closed such a spiritual success. Never in the history of the parish to his knowledge, he said, had there been such a large attendance not only at the special Sunday evening services but at the devotions every Friday evening as well, and the number of communions had been very large.

Sowed for the Poor. He cited the example of a number of ladies of the parish who determined to give up their usual social diversions during Lent and to employ the time in serving for the poor. This plan was suggested by Mr. Andrew J. Wholey of Park street, and most of the meetings were held at her home. As a result, a surprisingly large number of well made garments were provided for distribution among the parish poor. Those composing this informal sewing club were, besides Mrs. Wholey, Mrs. John A. Brady, Mrs. Charles E. Brady, Mrs. William T. Browne, Mrs. John Campbell, Mrs. John J. Corkery, Mrs. Ellen Leahy, Mrs. M. V. Murphy, Mrs. James M. Malloy, Mrs. John J. Mara, Mrs. Jeremiah Sullivan, Mrs. D. T. Shea and Mrs. Richard M. Powers.

Commenting on the practice of making Lent a time to give up certain pleasures and forms of indulgence, Rev. Father Treanor said that where there is not self-denial, mortification, there can be no true religious spirit, nothing but superficial religion, for only by self-denial can Christians follow their model, Christ, who was continually preaching abnegation.

Prayers for the Dead. The congregation had already joined in prayer for those who had perished in the Titanic disaster, and Father Treanor cited that harrowing calamity as a proof of the uncertainty of life, and the necessity of employing each day as if it were the last. He filled with good deeds in his service, in helpfulness towards mankind and in laboring for the salvation of souls. A week ago, he said, the pious company on the gigantic liner had no thought of death or disaster. Suddenly hundreds were sent to rest in eternal reward. What one among those horrified at their fate can tell the time, the place, or can determine the manner of his own taking away?

Mission by Dominican Fathers. Reference was made to the two weeks' mission to open on Sunday next at the high mass, and all were urged to improve the opportunity to make the mission worthy. It is to be given by Dominican Fathers, the first week for the women of the parish and the second for the men. Especially was each listener urged to activity in personal evangelism, and wherever there might be a case of carelessness, indifference and the practice of religion, each was recommended to make an effort to persuade such persons to return, during the pre-eminent acceptable time of the mission.

The high mass was celebrated by the Rev. William E. Cavanaugh, who at its close gave benediction of the blessed sacrament, this taking the place of the customary afternoon vespers service.

The music was well rendered by the regular choir under direction of Organist F. L. Barry.

After the gospel, since Easter Sunday, the paschal candle in its handsome standard is lighted at the high mass, typifying the Light that shines among the Gentiles.

WEDDING. Hull-Worth. An exceptionally pretty wedding took place at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Worth, No. 6 Call street, when their third daughter, Miss Justine Bridget Worth, was united in marriage with William Henry Hull, son of Mrs. William Hull, of Pequot avenue, New London, in the presence of about 100 relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Richard E. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church, in the front parlor of the residence. The rosters were made attractive with decorations of yellow and white blossoming plants with a ground work of palms.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Louise Worth, and the groom by his brother, Mr. George E. Hull, Jr., of New London. The bride's party entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The customary opening ceremony was read and during the ceremony Mr. Graham's orchestra softly played the Spring Song. The bride was given away by her father, during the exchange of the wedding rings the selections were rendered by the orchestra.

The bride was given in white tulle and lace, with trimmings of pearls and real lace, and her hair was styled with white lilies. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, white roses, and the most beautiful of white roses. The groom was dressed in white, and wore a white waistcoat over a white shirt, and a white bow tie. The bride wore a white lace veil over her face, and a white lace train over her dress. The bride's shoes were white lace over lavender.

Following the wedding ceremony the bride and groom were seated at a table in the dining room. The table was set with white and yellow. In the center of the table was a basket of roses, while further decorations were wedding sippers and candelabra. There were many beautiful gifts to the bride, including a silver service from her parents, a diamond brooch and a building lot on Ocean avenue. New London from the groom's mother, Mrs. H. A. Scott, and many articles in glass silver and china.

The table and the bride in the bride was a last and in his best man a silver monogram cigarette case. The bride's gift to her maid was a pearl necklace.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull left during the evening for a wedding tour to Wilmington, Del., Baltimore, Md., Washington, D. C., and New York. For a

NO EVIDENCE of the payment of a bill is so convincing as a canceled check. We offer you the convenience of our Commercial Department. You furnish the money; we do all the rest.

Exercise Run to Taftville. Physical Director A. C. Pease with Jack Monty, made a run to Taftville postoffice and back on Saturday with a party of nine of the M. M. C. A. Juniors, taking it only as a health exercise and not for time. The eight miles in the round trip were covered in one hour and ten minutes, at an easy pace.

Played for City Bible Class. At the session of the City Bible class at the Central Baptist church on Sunday, special musical numbers were given by a quartette consisting of Arthur E. Goodwin, John P. Swann, Robert W. Lang, and John K. Kikula, clarinet. They played twice and were given a rising vote of thanks for their finely rendered selections.

Case Was Continued. In the city court on Saturday, the case against John D. and Mary Housley, his wife, accused of receiving stolen goods, was continued to this morning.

Resigns as Superintendent. Robert P. Stevens, superintendent of the Thames River Superintendence company, resigned at Montauk Point, where he had been superintendent, which has been accepted. He has been superintendent at the mill for about a year.

Lineman Fell 25 Feet. Frank Corcoran, a lineman employed by the Southern New England Telephone company, fell 25 feet while at work on the top of a 25 foot pole at New London, Sunday, and fell to the ground. Witnesses who rushed to the scene expected to find him dead, but he escaped with three slight scalp wounds.

Exercise Run to Taftville. Physical Director A. C. Pease with Jack Monty, made a run to Taftville postoffice and back on Saturday with a party of nine of the M. M. C. A. Juniors, taking it only as a health exercise and not for time. The eight miles in the round trip were covered in one hour and ten minutes, at an easy pace.

Played for City Bible Class. At the session of the City Bible class at the Central Baptist church on Sunday, special musical numbers were given by a quartette consisting of Arthur E. Goodwin, John P. Swann, Robert W. Lang, and John K. Kikula, clarinet. They played twice and were given a rising vote of thanks for their finely rendered selections.

Case Was Continued. In the city court on Saturday, the case against John D. and Mary Housley, his wife, accused of receiving stolen goods, was continued to this morning.

Resigns as Superintendent. Robert P. Stevens, superintendent of the Thames River Superintendence company, resigned at Montauk Point, where he had been superintendent, which has been accepted. He has been superintendent at the mill for about a year.

Lineman Fell 25 Feet. Frank Corcoran, a lineman employed by the Southern New England Telephone company, fell 25 feet while at work on the top of a 25 foot pole at New London, Sunday, and fell to the ground. Witnesses who rushed to the scene expected to find him dead, but he escaped with three slight scalp wounds.

Exercise Run to Taftville. Physical Director A. C. Pease with Jack Monty, made a run to Taftville postoffice and back on Saturday with a party of nine of the M. M. C. A. Juniors, taking it only as a health exercise and not for time. The eight miles in the round trip were covered in one hour and ten minutes, at an easy pace.

Played for City Bible Class. At the session of the City Bible class at the Central Baptist church on Sunday, special musical numbers were given by a quartette consisting of Arthur E. Goodwin, John P. Swann, Robert W. Lang, and John K. Kikula, clarinet. They played twice and were given a rising vote of thanks for their finely rendered selections.

Case Was Continued. In the city court on Saturday, the case against John D. and Mary Housley, his wife, accused of receiving stolen goods, was continued to this morning.